

Short Courses towards Accreditation for teaching in Catholic Schools

The Catholic Institute of Western Australia* (CIWA) is offering short courses to post-graduate (Graduate Diploma of Education and Master of Teaching) students looking to teach in Catholic schools. The short courses consist of modules taught over two weeks in a blended study mode with two days of face-to-face classes and the remainder of the unit via online activities and assessment items.

Unlike other offerings by CIWA in WA public universities, these courses are not credited towards elective units in a university teacher education program.

However, the short courses are recognised by Catholic Education Western Australia as contributing to the mandatory professional development requirement, called 'Accreditation'¹ to teach in a Catholic school. Successful completion of three courses counts towards Accreditation to Teach in a Catholic School and four courses (by completing the Teaching Religious Education course) counts towards Accreditation to Teach Religious Education in a Catholic School.

There will be short courses offered in July and December 2018 and another short course in January 2019.
