

CATHOLIC STUDIES ELECTIVE/SPECIALISATION UNITS, EDITH COWAN, CURTIN, MURDOCH UNIVERSITIES & UWA 2018

'Catholic Ed' elective units are open to all students. There is no requirement to be Catholic or Christian to choose these units. The units, however, have been written to meet the Catholic Education Commission of WA's policy requiring those seeking to teach in Catholic schools to gain 'accreditation'.

The 'tertiary study' component of accreditation requires the successful completion of three Catholic study units, either before commencing teaching or within the first five years of accepting a position in a Catholic school. The Catholic Institute offers accredited units at Edith Cowan, Curtin and Murdoch universities as well as the University of Western Australia.

For students who are unable to access these units, then the Catholic Institute offers a Short Course program of three modules. Information about the Short Courses can be found here.

Note: Edith Cowan University (ECU) offers five units in Catholic studies each year at undergraduate level. Three units are also offered in the Master of Teaching (Primary) and two units in the Master of Teaching (Secondary) degree. There are four units offered for those seeking to include Catholic units in the Master of Education degree. (JO – Joondalup Campus) (ML – Mount Lawley Campus)

Note: Curtin University (C) offers three Catholic studies units each year in their Bachelor of Education programs. All three units are planned to be offered in both on-campus/face-to-face mode and also in online mode for regional and metropolitan students who may benefit from this.

Note: Murdoch University (MURD) offers one unit each year in Catholic studies in Summer School to assist Education students meet the tertiary study requirements of accreditation. Education students need to complete three units.

Note: The University of Western Australia (UWA) offers one unit each year in Catholic studies in Summer School to assist Master of Teaching (secondary) students meet the tertiary study requirements of accreditation. Students will need to complete two other units via the Catholic Institute's short course program.
