

CATHOLIC STUDIES ELECTIVE/SPECIALISATION UNITS, EDITH COWAN, CURTIN & MURDOCH UNIVERSITIES 2020

'Catholic Ed' elective units are open to all students. There is no requirement to be Catholic or Christian to choose these units. The units, however, have been written to meet the Catholic Education Commission of WA's policy requiring those seeking to teach in Catholic schools to gain 'accreditation'.

The 'tertiary study' component of accreditation requires the successful completion of three Catholic study units, either before commencing teaching or within the first five years of accepting a position in a Catholic school. The Catholic Institute of Western Australia offers accredited units at Edith Cowan, Curtin and Murdoch universities.

Edith Cowan University (ECU) offers five units in Catholic studies each year at undergraduate level. Three units are also offered in the Master of Teaching (Primary) and two units in the Master of Teaching (Secondary) degree. There are four units as part of a Catholic Education Specialisation offered for those seeking to include Catholic units in the Master of Education degree.

Curtin University (C) offers three Catholic studies units each year in their Bachelor of Education programs. All three units are offered in both on-campus/face-to-face mode and also in online mode for regional and metropolitan students who may benefit from this. Curtin also provides Catholic Education units through the Open Universities Australia (OUA) platform.

Murdoch University (M) offers one unit each year in Catholic studies in Summer School to assist Education students meet the tertiary study requirements of accreditation. Education students need to complete three units.

Note: For students who attend pre-service teacher education courses at The University of Western Australia or who are unable to access these Catholic Education elective units in their university can choose to enroll into the Catholic Institute's Short Courses click here.
